Tracking the Influence of Grey Literature in Public Policy Contexts: The Necessity and Benefit of Interdisciplinary Research

Bertrum H. MacDonald, Elizabeth M. De Santo, Kevin Quigley, Suzuette S. Soomai, & Peter G. Wells

Dalhousie University, Halifax, Canada www.eiui.ca

14th International Conference on Grey Literature, Rome, Italy, 29-30 November 2012

```
12,43688
```

I. Our common vision

A/66/L.56

1. We, the Heads of State and Government and high-level representatives, having met at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, from 20 to 22 June 2012, with the full participation of civil society, renew our commitment to sustainable development and to ensuring the promotion of an economically, socially and environmentally sustainable future for our planet and for present and future generations.

Eradicating poverty is the greatest global challenge facing the world today and an indispensable requirement for sustainable development. In this regard we are committed to freeing humanity from poverty and hunger as a matter of urgency.

We therefore acknowledge the need to further mainstream sustainable development at all levels, integrating economic, social and environmental aspects and recognizing their interlinkages, so as to achieve sustainable development in all

We recognize that poverty eradication, changing unsustainable and promoting sustainable patterns of consumption and production and protecting and managing the natural resource base of economic and social development are the overarching objectives of and essential requirements for sustainable development. We also reaffirm the need to achieve sustainable development by promoting sustained. inclusive and equitable economic growth, creating greater opportunities for all, reducing inequalities, raising basic standards of living, fostering equitable social development and inclusion, and promoting integrated and sustainable management of natural resources and ecosystems that supports, inter alia, economic, social and human development while facilitating ecosystem conservation, regeneration and restoration and resilience in the face of new and emerging challenges.

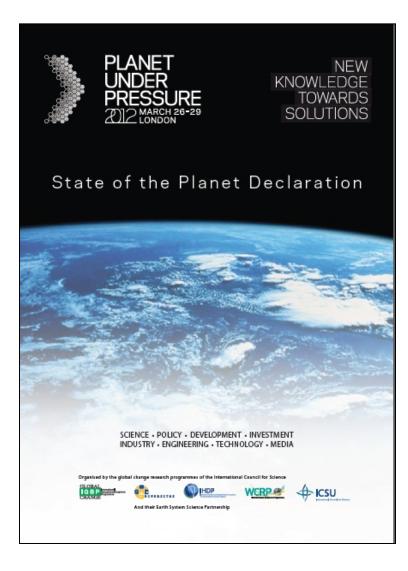

We reaffirm our commitment to make every effort to accelerate the achievement of the internationally agreed development goals, including the Millennium Development Goals by 2015.

6. We recognize that people are at the centre of sustainable development and in this regard we strive for a world that is just, equitable and inclusive, and we commit to work together to promote sustained and inclusive economic growth, social development and environmental protection and thereby to benefit all.

We reaffirm that we continue to be guided by the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations, with full respect for international law and its

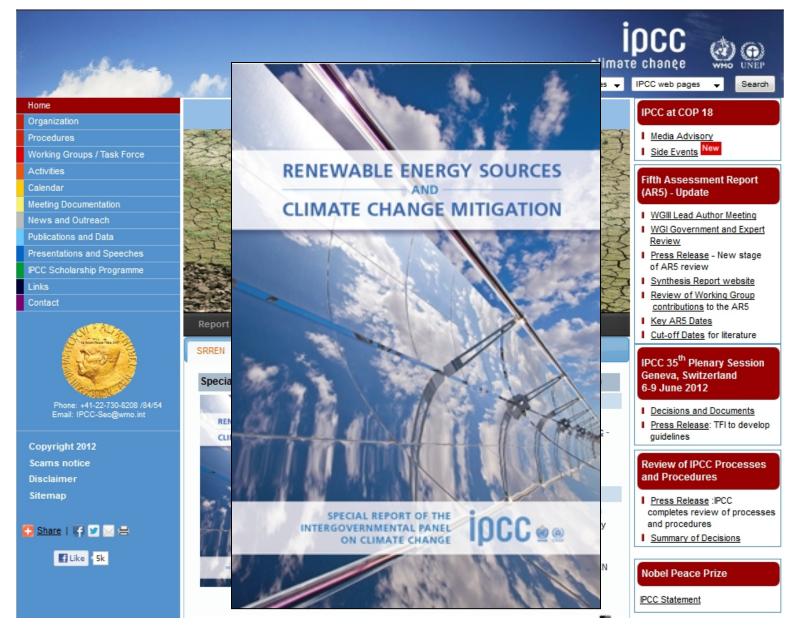

We also reaffirm the importance of freedom, peace and security, respect for all human rights, including the right to development and the right to an adequate standard of living, including the right to food, the rule of law, gender equality, women's empowerment and the overall commitment to just and democratic societies

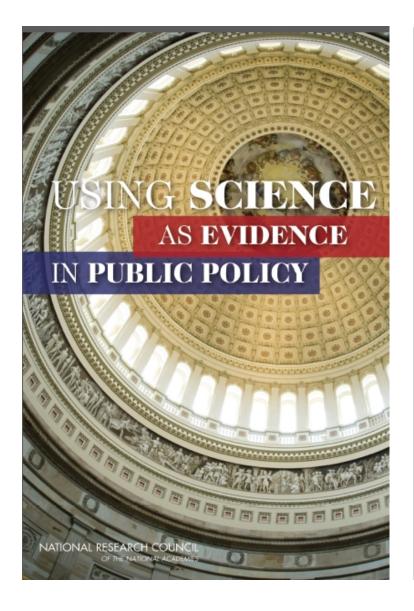

9. We reaffirm the importance of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, as well as other international instruments relating to human rights and international

"Research now demonstrates that the continued functioning of the Earth system as it has supported the well-being of human civilization in recent centuries is at risk."

Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change

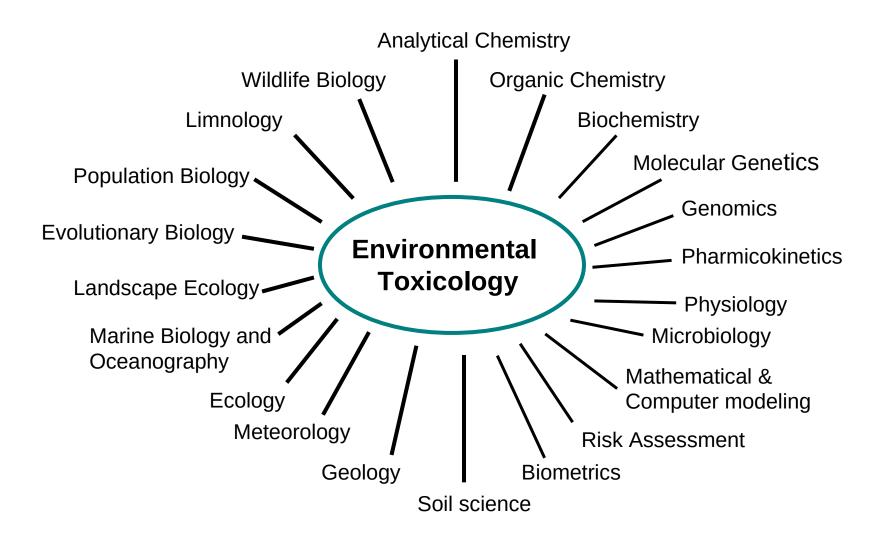

Knowledge and Environmental Policy

RE-IMAGINING THE BOUNDARIES OF SCIENCE AND POLITICS

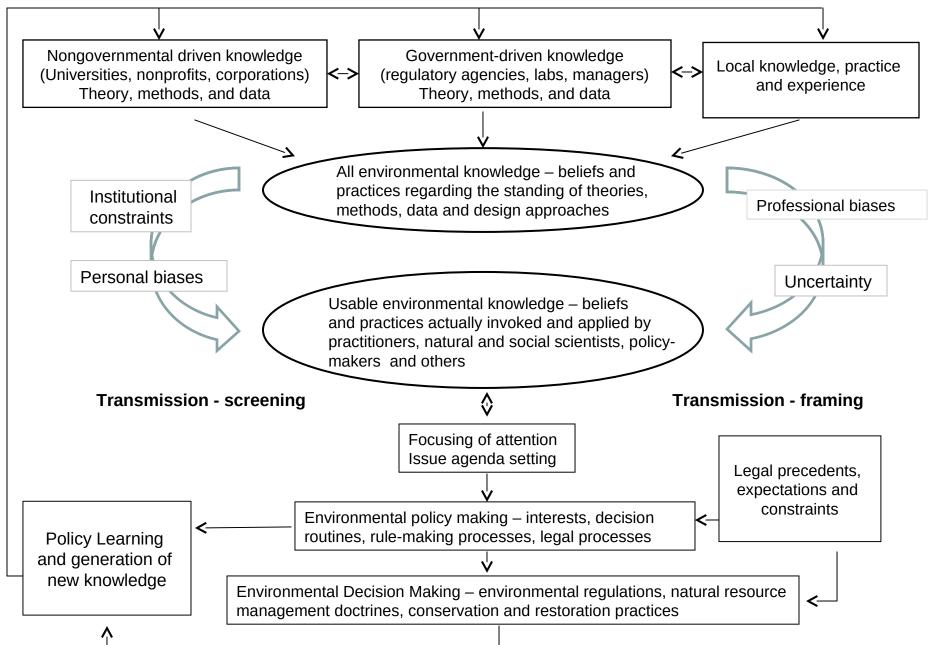

William Ascher, Toddi Steelman, and Robert Healy

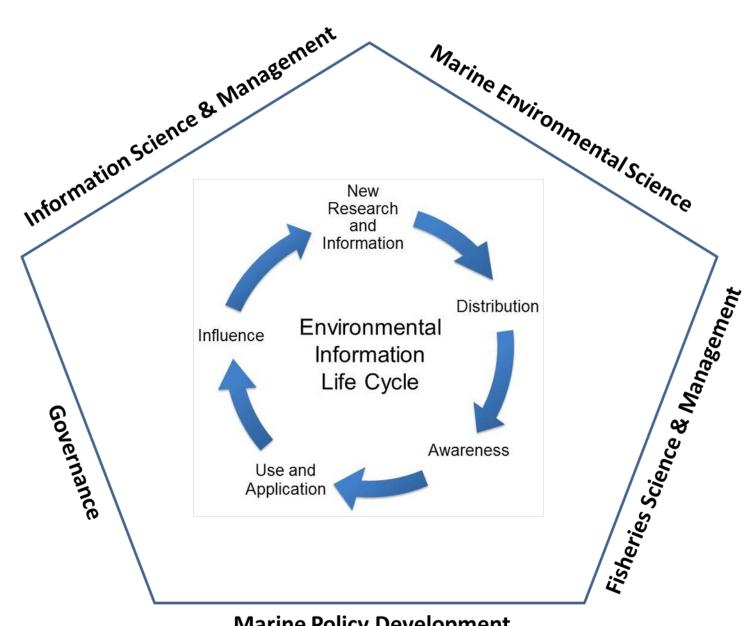

Environmental Toxicology and Some of Its Components

Generation, transmission, and use of environmental information

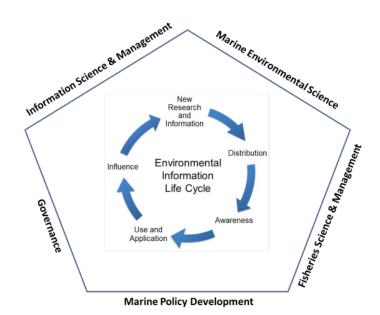

Marine Policy Development

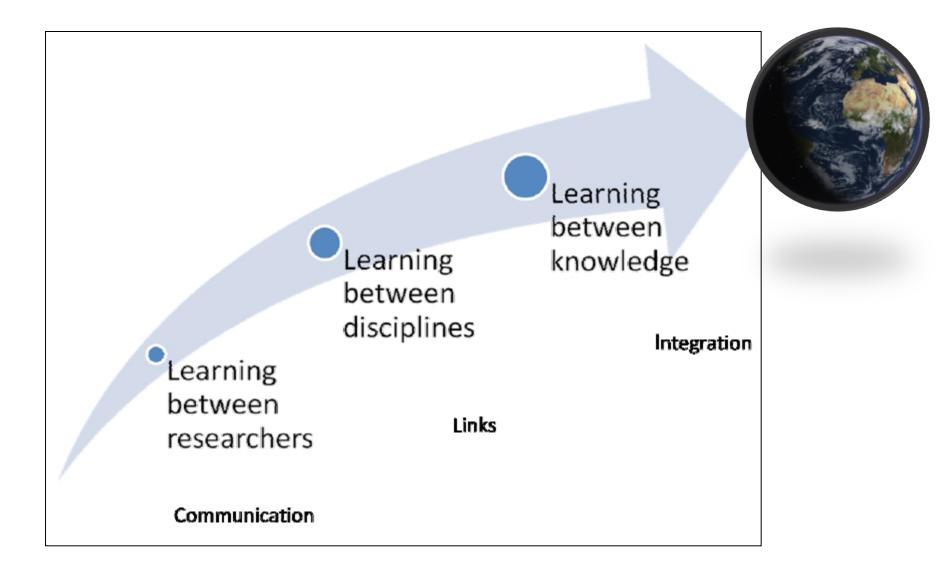

Benefits of Interdisciplinary Research and Knowledge

Integration of disciplinary perspectives becomes powerful in addressing big problems with many dimension.

- Greater capacity in determining core research questions.
- Increased creativity in problem solving.
- Larger suite of methodological expertise.
- Greater capability in appreciating the roles of many types of stakeholders.
- Increased understanding of different institutional cultures at the science-policy interface.

Increased credibility with funding sources and partner organizations.

Steps in Learning in Interdisciplinary Process

(Haapasaari, Kulmala, & Kuikka, 2011)

Acknowledgements

Research conducted by the EIUI team is supported by

- Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada
- Research partner organizations
- School of Information Management, Dalhousie University

More Information at www.eiui.ca